

Abstract

The invention relates to a display device for motor vehicles and to a method for actuating a display device for motor 5 vehicles. These are motor vehicles which for operation in addition to the fuel require an additive which is consumed as a function of the fuel consumption and other driving parameters. The display device according to the invention is used to indicate the range of the store of additive based on 10 the range of a full fuel tank.